FLUID APARTMENT The Concept was to insert fluid curvilinear joinery pods within the gutted existing shell, to house the wet areas and services, as well as sculpting the space.

The soft curves of this joinery were in response both to the view as well as the curved façade of the existing building. Copper highlights and solid timber (milled from fallen 200 year old trees) bring richness and contrast to an all white space.

Subtle and understated detailing enhances the ambience of calm.
